FATHER, NEARBY,
FINDS SON'S BODY

Youth Is Struck as Log
Rolls Off Flat Bottom Wagon

Olin Grubbs, 21, is dead at his home near Bethesda, in the western section of the county, killed almost instantly when struck in the head with a log.

Young Grubbs was working with his father, W. B. Grubbs, yesterday afternoon on their farm about a mile west of Bethesda.

The pair were hewing down timber, cutting it into logs and hauling them away.

The boy was engaged in loading logs on a flat bed wagon. His father was busy elsewhere.

Finds Son's Body

Looking for his son, Mr. Grubbs found him beside the wagon where he had fallen after being struck in the head by one of the logs as it rolled off the wagon bed. The boy was dead, according to reports, when the father reached his side.

In addition to his parents, he leaves three brothers, Waldo and Harvey at home, and Ray in Cleveland; and a sister, Paye, also at home.

The funeral service will be held at 2 p. m. Wednesday at the home. Burial will be in the cemetery at Hanoverton.

The youth was a member of the Bethesda church and active in its affairs.

New Finance Plan For Mullins Corp. Is Given Approval

Stockholders of the Mullins Manufacturing Corp., have approved plans for readjusting the company's capital structure and refunding accumulated preferred dividends. M. A. Stenrensen, committee secretary, reports.

The plan involves creation of 28,775 shares of no par non-accumulative $7 preferred stock which is to be exchanged, share for share, for present cumulative $7 preferred. New stock will receive dividends when earned, but profit up to $7 a share a year will become cumulative if earned and not paid.

Call price will remain $105 while 57,550 shares of new class A common stock will be issued. Each preferred holder will receive two shares in payment of accumulated dividends.

New class A common shares with par value of $7.50 will share alike with common dividends, but will take precedence in event of liquidation. They will be convertible into class B common, share for share, until 1940.

The plan also provides for creation of 172,550 shares new class B common, $1 par value, 100,000 shares of which will be exchanged for present common, share for share.

Gifts, Big Incomes, Business Hit In Proposed Tax Program

SENATE GROUP STUDIES PLAN

340-Million Is Estimated
Income of Three-
Way Proposal

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, June 25.—Chairman Harrison of the senate finance committee said today a three-way tax program to raise $340,000,000 through inheritance and gift levies, higher taxes on big incomes and graduated corporation tax would be added to the pending measure to continue $500,000,000 of "nuisance" taxes another year.

After a conference with treasury experts, Harrison said the program would be offered even though it would mean the nuisance and excise taxes might temporarily lapse at the end of this week.

New inheritance tax Harrison said would begin on net inheritances of about $300,000, under the tentative program mapped out by the expert.

Surplus rates on incomes of more than $1,000,000, now 59 per cent, would be raised on a graduated scale running from about 60 per cent to about 80 per cent above $10,000,000.

The proposed corporation tax would raise from 10 per cent on net profits of $2,000 to 17½ per cent on net profits of $20,000,000 or more. This sliding scale would replace the present flat rate of 13½ on all corporations.

President Roosevelt's recommendations on the corporation tax were 10½ and 16½. Harrison explained that the 17½ per cent amounted to about the proposal of the chief executive.

The finance committee was called by Harrison to meet late this afternoon to consider the new program.

Headlight

John Lawrence of 3237 Loveland avenue, Youngstown, was nabbed by State Highway Patrolmen J. E. Ivory and F. S. Van Allen at 10 p. m. Monday with 105 gallons of liquor in his possession. And it all happened because Lawrence was driving his sedan with only one headlight.

G-MEN MAP WAR ON BUCKETSHOPS

Cummings Says Swindlers
Get Millions From American Public

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, June 25.—Declaring that a nation-wide ring of chain bucketshop swindlers is milking the public of "millions," a torney General Cummings made a plea today for public cooperation to wipe out the "racketeers."

Evidence collected by the justice department, Cummings said in an interview with The Associated Press, points to bucketshop headquarters in New York and Chicago. "We know the names of the leaders," he said, "but it will take cooperation of both the public and legitimate brokers to put them where they belong—behind the bars of a federal prison."

"With unquestioned superior ability as salesmen, with thousands of dollars to spend on elaborate offices, long distance telephone calls and telegrams and an indirect system of payoff the swindlers offer one of the most serious menaces to law enforcement in the country today."

Most of the victims Cummings said are doctors, lawyers, professors and business men.

"Actually," he said, "these men are convinced they have lost their money in a legitimate investment. Usually they are afraid to complain to federal officers because these smooth racketeers always have the victims in debt after they have cleaned them."

Cummings cited the recent conviction of 16 men and a woman in New York City, as a part of a national chain of bucketshop operators.

"This gang," the attorney general said, "operated in Kansas City, Oklahoma City, Houston, Shreveport, Fort Worth, New Orleans and Dallas for brief periods before federal officials caught up with them."

"In each place they would use a new firm name. They knew all the inside details of the stock and bond business. They hired some local men of good reputation as a front. They spent thousands of dollars on telephone calls and telegrams and paid their bills as long as it was profitable to operate."

The patrolmen, conducting a traffic check at the junction of Routes 14 and 46, stopped Lawrence and ordered him to pull into a nearby gasoline station. Then the liquor was discovered hidden in the rear of the car in five-gallon containers.

New Deal Tax Program

Three points were included in the program outlined by President Roosevelt when he urged congress to revise the federal tax system to comply with the principle of "progressive taxation of wealth and income." It is estimated that the program, although no definite scale was outlined by the president, would yield nearly $1,000,000,000 annually on this basis.

1. Tax on inheritances of large gifts, increasing the present levy which now graduates up to 60 per cent on estates over $10,000,000.
2. Revision of the tax on large incomes to graduate the scale, levying heaviest on incomes over $1,000,000 which now are taxed 63 per cent.
3. Graduated corporation tax varying in rate between 10½ and 16½ per cent.

Britain Perfects New Robot Planes

LONDON, June 25.—Great Britain today claimed the possession of the first entirely robot airplanes in the world.

The air ministry revealed that a number of pilotless machines were in regular use for gunnery practice over land and sea.

The airplanes are called the "Queen Bee" type, are operated completely by radio, fly more than 100 miles an hour, and reach an altitude of more than 100,000 feet, but their radius is confined to 10 miles from the operating station.

An air ministry official said: "They can be controlled so finely that without anyone aboard they will take off from the land and perform a flight limited only by fuel and the distance from the wireless station, then descend with again with complete accuracy."

"They can also be catapulted from ships at sea and brought down on water after completing the flight."

Gas Main Explodes When Hit By Auto

COLUMBUS, June 25.—Two youths lived today to tell of a narrow escape from death when their automobile was destroyed in an explosion of a gas main on a farm 10 miles east of here.

The machine, driven by Bernard Dempsey, 20, left a road and struck a valve on a feeder line leading to Columbus. He crawled from a window and pulled his companion, Fred Conroy, 19, to safety as the main exploded with a roar that was heard for miles.

Flames rose high in the air and the heat was so intense that it was impossible to fight the blaze. The youths were treated in a hospital here for cuts and bruises.

ALLMAN WON'T PUSH INQUIRY

Probe of Marysville Reformatory Denied by Welfare Director

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, June 25.—Despite a criticism of conditions at the Marysville reformatory for women by a department of welfare aide, Director Margaret Allman planned no inquiry today.

She announced that George C. Williams, state chief of prison and food equipment, who asserted immorality was prevalent and that women prisoners were mistreated, "had been asked to confine his investigations to food only."

Mrs. Allman's statement that no action was contemplated contradicted an assertion of Oakley Spaght, her assistant, that an investigation would be made.

Advised Against Comment
Spaght, admitting conditions at the reformatory were not what they should be, said he had advised Williams against any public comment on state institutions.

Williams, countering with the remark that "Spaght doesn't have a damn thing to do with me," included in his charges that women were kept in "dunsmore" cells, were "living under conditions unfit for dogs," were coerced into abnormal sexual practices by other inmates and were not separated from other inmates even when afflicted with social diseases.

Mrs. Louise Mittendorf, superintendent of the institution, admitted that immorality existed and that some conditions were not of the best. She laid the blame, however, to the state for not appropriating funds to rectify the evils.

Williams was appointed chief of prison and food equipment three months ago by Governor Davey. He said he was "taking orders from no one but the governor," and that he was going to "expose cruelty where I find it."

EDEN REQUESTS IL DUCE PLANS

British League Leader
Confers With Italian
Undersecretary

(Copyright, 1935, by The Associated Press)

ROME, June 25.—Great Britain's minister for league of nations affairs, Capt. Anthony Eden, made a preliminary survey of the Ethiopian question with Fulvio Suvich, Italian undersecretary for foreign affairs, this morning preparatory to a meeting with Premier Mussolini which may be one of the most important encounters of the year.

The British diplomat and Suvich drove to Castel Fusano on the coast for luncheon. Although the idea of a formal conversation on foreign affairs in Rome was abandoned, the two statesmen managed to cover many subjects during the 45-minute drive and later, at the table.

British sources said the object of Eden's discussions today with Mussolini was to make no offers but to find out from Il Duce exactly what the premier wants from Ethiopia before he will give up the idea of an expedition into the African empire. It was said that, after he had received this information, Eden would be prepared to make himself an intermediary with Emperor Haile Selassie.

At the same time, Eden was prepared to enter into a thorough discussion of the juridical situation created in the league of nations by the Italo-Ethiopian conflict.

Most especially before the conference was the subject of the effect on the league covenant's article 10 guaranteeing territorial integrity and article 15 providing arbitration by the league council in the event of an international dispute.

Italian sources said Mussolini held that, from the Italian viewpoint, neither of these articles could be invoked in the present conflict.

It was said that article 10 could not be invoked because article 19, providing for territorial revision, and to which article 10 is linked, never has been applied.

CLEAN SLATE

The approaching end of the fiscal year 1935 on June 30 will encourage renewed examination of the federal government's financial condition. It will be found to be somewhat better than expected, but somewhat worse than hoped. That will be due largely to President Roosevelt's policy of leading the nation to expect the worst and to be surprised by the discovery on the day of reckoning that the worst didn't materialize. In that way it is possible in some measure to gloss over facts which, in themselves, would cause deep apprehension.

Total expenditures of $8,581,000,000 were predicted for the current fiscal year. Latest treasury figures show the total will be approximately $8,864,000,000, which is 20 percent under the estimate. The net deficit for the year, excluding public debt retirement, was estimated at $4,297,000,000. The actual deficit will be approximately $2,800,000,000, which is 35 percent under the estimate.

Income tax receipts for the year were estimated at $1,051,000,000. They are expected to reach, however, a total of $1,126,000,000, which is 7 percent over the estimate. Receipts from internal revenue, estimated at $1,557,000,000, will be more than 3 percent over the estimate. Thus, it is probable, with both expenditures and receipts considered, that the government's position at the close of the fiscal year will be approximately 30 percent better than President Roosevelt said it would be in his most recent budget message last January.

Estimates for the new fiscal year may be subject to the same percentage of error. Total expenditures have been placed at $8,520,000,000. The deficit for the year has been placed at $4,528,000,000. If they follow the trend of the current year, expenditures will be less than $7,000,000,000 and the deficit will be less than $3,000,000,000. That would be bad enough, but not so bad as it might have been. A new idea has been introduced into budgetary practice.

THE PIONEER SPIRIT

Alaska isn't far enough away to be out of reach of sensitive congressional ears. The fun is starting. In response to appeals from some of the colonists, the senate has called on Relief Administrator Hopkins to tell everything he knows about their condition. In due course of time there will be, no doubt, a congressional junket to the scene of the experiment. A telegram read to the senate tells the story: "Six weeks passed. Nothing done, no houses, wells, roads. Inadequate machinery, tools, government food undelivered. Commissary prices exorbitant, educational facilities for season doubtful. Apparently men sent to pick political plums..."

On the other side of the question, a spokesman for the administration has said: "These people knew that they were entering upon a pioneering project... They are much better off than they were on the sub-marginal, non-productive land from which they were transferred."

That may be true. If so, the problem is to convince the colonists it is true. Some people are naturally complainers. It is recalled that one of the first complaints made against the government by the Alaskan settlers charged that day coaches had been provided instead of sleeping cars for the journey to the west coast. Probably day coaches were better than walking, but that didn't matter.

Two things may be proved before the Alaskan colony gets settled or breaks up in an explosion of discontent. One is, that this government's bureaucracy isn't capable of carrying out plans satisfactorily. The other is, that the pioneering spirit under a policy of paternalism is likely to be a sickly inspiration to transplanted dependents.

THE STARS SAY

For Wednesday, June 26

A day of surprising events is predicted from the prevailing lunar influences. These combine to bring about sudden changes and very advantageous openings in possibly new fields or with strange associates. Industry and fidelity may be supported by old, established institutions as well as combines, rings and secret bodies. But in all be wary as to loopholes for misunderstandings.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of sudden developments, both surprising and intriguing. This is likely to be in connection with combines, old institutions and secret organizations. Influential personages stand ready to reward and sustain meritorious plans. These may take one into strange fields or to new associations.

A child born on this day may be industrious, capable and responsible, winning the friendship and substantial aid of those in power.

Notable nativity: Lord Kelvin, mathematician.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, June 25—The Great White Way is no longer white. It is mostly red. Song writers might rhapsodize it as the gush from broken hearts. But it's only a change of electrical coloring. There are streaks here and there of blue, green and pink, but the white is almost gone.

Looking from Columbus Circle southward the street at night suggests some gory gulch. The depression has had its effect also on the grandeur of electrical signs. There are only a few intricately moving panoramas left. Girls in swings, acrobatic troupes, etc. Mostly the signs just flash on and off or burn steadily. On slack evenings, such as Monday, there is noticeable conservation of light. Some burn only until 9. The only evening when all currents are full tilt is Saturday. It's the only night the Paramount clock is lighted.

The most expensive sign of the moment, I am told, is in the Times Square area, one of the few that jiggle and leap into a ziz-zooom-ah. Its roof top rental is $1,000 a week. The costliest for all time was the thread ad. of the kitten that became entangled in the strands of the product.

The genesis of the "strut sitting down" allusion that Wilton Lackaye made to a pompous Broadway actor is discovered in an early book by Harry Leon Wilson written about 30 years ago. He speaks of an invalid as the type who "swaggers stretched out in bed."

One of Manhattan's most pronounced floral fops is the repeated efforts to make the mall flowering down the center of Park Avenue bloom with flowers and shrubbery. For two years now the horticulturists have been re-planting their bright displays, only to have them wither and decay, leave a depressing rusty streak. Just one more jolt for the taxpayers' jitters!

Broadway has seen still another of its favorites take a cuffling in the craze to open restaurants. This time it was Harry Cooper, who was enticed out of semi-retirement with his profits as a long time vaudeville act with the Empire City Quartette. He opened auspiciously on a corner near Broadway but buckled into bankruptcy, and, struggling through a few more business dwindling weeks, hung up the shutters. "The best people came," he philosophized, "but not often enough."

About the only established restaurant that has not taken a beating or a shot of receivership in the immediate Jack Dempsey area is Lindy's. Dempsey's five-acre place evacuated several and slowed up the receipts of nearly all. Lindy's has somehow been able to catch and hold the Broadway favor as no restaurant since Churchill's, 20 years ago. It understands the taste of the thoroughfare — gefülltefish, meat balls aswim in gravy, double lamb chops, marinated herring, enormous baked Idahos gutted with chunks of butter, well onioned hamburger, salads that carry the conviction of garlic, huge slabs of mountainously meringued pies with palm-sized wedges of cheese on the side and, most important of all, savagely brewed coffee. Broadway's appetite has a raw meat lustiness and only caterers of real he-food survive.

Many believe that Babe Ruth would make an ideal front man for a restaurant. Although it requires standing on one's feet for long hours and the bambino's legs, limbs or whatever the term this season are not what they were. The Babe has acquired a gracious manner in meeting folk. And right now his enormous following think baseball's treatment of him was particularly snide. It is quite likely they would flock to see him. For a little while anyway. Heroism unravels quickly in the big town though.

Fifty, more than forty, now seems the dynamite year for the modern male to make a fool of himself. At least in New York. Dunc cap awards went to two settled husbands and a retired Romeo who turned fiftyish not so long ago. Each went on the loose and made a holy show of himself, capering around the cafes and night clubs with giggly and lispin cuties. And seemed to take a Daddy Browning sort of delight in somersaulting through the tabloid headlines.

And there was that gentleman so long a figure in the Page One scare heads who popped in the other afternoon, glooming about his sudden drop out of the parade. He loved the red fire and tomtoms. As he departed Ted Woodyard, having an affair with a cross-word puzzle across the room, looked up to observe: "What that bird needs is a grand jury investigation."

Drilling at the site of the Koenreich farm in the vicinity of New Albany, northeast of town, has been suspended for the time being, but will shortly be resumed and the test well put down to a greater depth.

Mrs. Margaret Beatty is celebrating her one hundredth birthday today at the home of her son, W. M. Beatty, near New Waterford.

Mrs. W. L. Hawley and Mrs. L. Tomlinson of this city spent Friday in Alliance where they visited Mrs. A. D. Woolman, who is a sister of Mrs. Hawley and L. Tomlinson of this city.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.
(Issue of June 25, 1915)

On the ninth anniversary of the murder of Stanford White, of which Henry K. Thaw was acquitted on the grounds of insanity, Dr. N. E. Guillet, Walter M. Lang, real estate agent, Eugene P. Nutt and Major R. P. Johnson, all of New Hampshire, testified today that in their opinion Thaw was rational.

Latest information has it that the famous Liberty bell will pass through this city very early on the morning of July 6 on its way from Philadelphia to the exposition at San Francisco, on a special train. No stops will be made here or in this vicinity, the first stop west of Pittsburgh being Mansfield.

Announcements were received here Friday morning of the marriage of Miss Mary Anderson and William Dunn, prominent residents of this city, which occurred Thursday afternoon, June 24, at 4:30 at the home of the bride's brother, T. B. Anderson in Chicago. After a few days visit there they will return to Salem to make their home.

Care of the Eyes
THERE is no organ of the body more abused and more neglected than the eye. Somehow we take it for granted that the construction and machinery of this organ are so perfect, so automatic in operation, and also adjustable to every possible demand, that it is unnecessary to give it a thought.

Unless actual disease, redness and pain, sticking together of the lids, or some other really uncomfortable symptom is present, we go about our affairs in delightful ignorance that after all there is something wrong with the organ of vision. Many foolish persons suffer from eyestrain, fully realizing that glasses are necessary. Others having provided themselves with spectacles, fail to wear them when they are most needed. Many a person walks around with glasses in his pocket when in reality he should be wearing them every minute.

Test Them Regularly
When the time for wearing glasses arrives, there will be found a need to change the lenses from time to time. On that account, it is of the utmost importance that the eyes be tested pretty regularly. Wearing the same lenses for a long period of years may result ultimately in weakening the eyes and actual damage to the sight.

It is only by a careful test by one who has scientific training that the true condition of your eyes can be determined. Periodical, general physical examinations are particularly valuable to persons past 50. Periodical eye examinations are essential in every age group.

Many a child is counted stupid in school because he has unrecognized eye trouble and cannot study as the normal child does. Failure to progress in school or college is frequently the result of uncorrected eyestrain. Listlessness, alleged laziness, unwillingness to work at tasks requiring good eyesight, and other important social maladjustments, are all too many times the direct effect of poor eyes.

Many children require glasses, yet, very naturally, young mothers object to their use. The parent fears they detract from the appearance of the child. This is a foolish attitude we all admit, but it is a human one. It is encouraging to know that many children who wear glasses in early childhood strengthen their eyes so that the glasses are not required in adult life.

Bear in mind that glasses are of greater curative value in the young than in the old. As we grow older certain changes occur that cannot be prevented. We can keep our eyesight from getting worse, but rarely can we cure chronically faulty sight. Frequently this is not the case in the young child.

It is amazing what relief comes with the correction of eyestrain. As if by magic, all the discomforts which have ruined what would otherwise be a happy life, will disappear with the adjustment of proper glasses.

The practical application of the science of optics has promoted as much the welfare of the human family as any other factor of which I have knowledge. I think great credit should be given all those engaged in the correction of eye defects.

WHOSE WIFE? A CYRUS K. MANTEL MURDER MYSTERY

by CLADYS SHAW ERSKINE AND IVAN FIRTH

CHAPTER XIX

Betty shook the spell of the morning voice off with an effort. "Get up out of it, Suky," she said. "Let's get back to everyday things. Come on now, forget all that voodoo of yours."

"I can't forget voodoo, Miss Betty. Cause voodoo can't forget me," said the old Negress with a dignity and a queer fatalism.

"Well, anyway," Betty was nervous. "You can't get out of answering my questions that way. Come on now. You have been calling up someone on the phone haven't you?"

"No, Miss Betty. I haven't. Someone called me back."

"What do you mean, someone called you here? Who could have done that? You've got no friends here."

"I were your uncle, Mr. Cyrus," said the old Negress. "What?" Betty almost shrieked.

"Yes, Miss Betty — and what's he come up here to see old Suky?"

"Well, for heaven's sake," Betty sat down on the edge of the bed.

"That's a great note—so Uncle Cyrus came up here to see you. I suppose he wanted to pump you as to my friends, and my comings and goings, did he?"

"No, Miss Betty," Suky was mild. "He never asked me a thing about you at all."

"Well then, for goodness sake what did he come for?"

"He wanted to know something about Mr. Wilbur Renton," said Suky quietly.

Betty stared at her old black maid as though she had never seen her before. She could scarcely credit her own ears with the news which they had just heard, and were asked to believe.

"What on earth could you tell him about Mr. Renton, Suky?" she asked simply. "What do you know about him anyway?"

"I knows plenty, Miss Betty," Suky picked up a frock that was to be pressed, and quietly walked from the room.

The rest of that morning had gone badly for Betty. She had puzzled over the strange attitude of Suky and the startling news that she had divulged. At the newspaper office, the city editor had been like a bear with a sore head.

And had become sarcastic in asking her whether she thought the paper was paying her just for her looks. She had turned out a sob story on a lost child, which looked maudlin in print, and had revamped a tragic tale of a fire and the homeless families. Then she had put on her close-fitting little turban and had gone out to lunch, refusing the usual couple of invitations shouted at her across the room from beneath green eyes.

Shades set at an angle. She felt that she couldn't eat a thing if she had to sit across the table from anyone who gathered news as a business in life—her idea of a perfect escort, at the moment would have been a deaf mute.

She walked to a favorite little hide-away restaurant, and forced a smile for the bowing headwaiter. At her request he placed her at a small table for two, in an inconspicuous spot. She ordered, and sat thinking and staring into space.

A fat jolly voice brought her back to herself.

"Hello, hello, hello," it chorled. "If it isn't Betty the Bee-utiful Newspaper Gal—in pussion!"

Without looking up she knew who belonged to that voice, and wearily she answered it.

"Hullo, Bobbie," she said. "How are you?"

"Well, well well," he said, and appropriated the extra chair at her table. "How've you been?"

Betty's mind worked quickly. She knew perfectly well that Bobbie Nichols the gossip gatherer, the talker par excellence did not like her—and with reason! She knew that ever since she had snipped his face for an uncalled for rudeness on his part, Nichols had hated her, had called her "that red-headed vixen," and had been set to get her into trouble in any way he could.

The quaintest old bird said he had sold a bottle of sleep medicine to Vane," narrated Bobbie Nichols.

Her quick brain told her that this seeming friendliness on his part must be assumed, that he had something he wanted to tell, and that it would probably be something that she would rather not hear—hence his eagerness to tell it.

"Hello, Bobbie," she repeated, and smiled at him her most bewitching smile. "What do you know?"

"Oh! This and that," he laughed. "I hear you're on the Vane murder case—kind of a boost and a kick for you, eh?"

"What do you mean?" Betty managed to keep her smile.

"Well, a boost from the paper angle, and a kick from the social!" Bobby was pleased with himself.

"Oh... I don't know," She tried to sound casual while her hand itched to repeat the slap she had given him once before.

"I heard a great one last night," Bobby leaned forward in the favorite attitude of the scandal-monger.

"Well, go on. Tell it, kind sir, tell it," Betty hated herself as she catered to his self love, but she felt that she must do it under these strange circumstances. For she was a news-hound on the scent.

"What'll you give to know?" Bobbie leered at her across the little table.

"I'll stake you to a beef-steak dinner," she laughed at him, in apparent camaraderie.

"Done!" he cried. "For a beef-steak Bobbie will tell all!"

As the waiter left after the new order had been placed, Betty could not resist leaning forward with ill-concealed eagerness.

"Come on, Bobbie," she begged. "Come across. What do you know?"

"Interest of the Newspaper Gal or of Betty the Daring Debutante?"

"No!" she gasped. "What did he say?"

"By Golly," he said. "Plenty. It seems that he had sold a bottle of veronal to Vane a few nights before the murder—told me all about it, he did—awfully pleased that the great artist had stopped to talk to him and had told him his name, Lawrence Vane. And here's the pay-off! The old guy was worried as to whether he ought to go to police with what he knew."

"What did you tell him, Bobbie?" Betty was tense.

"I told him to use his own judgment," Bobbie laughed. "That's safe enough—I don't think the old ape's got any!"

"Bobbie, are you sure—did he say he was sure—it was Lawrence Vane that bought it?"

"Sure!" said Bobbie cheerfully. Betty rose hurriedly.

"I must go," she said. "Thanks for telling me—I'll settle for yours on the way out," she managed a smile. "You know I'm a newspaper woman," she told him, "and news comes first."

Conflict started in the mind of Betty such as never before had been experienced by her. What to do? Newspaperwoman—or just a woman? What to do?

She walked rapidly, unseeing down the Avenue, fighting it out within herself. At last she turned into a shop, and went directly to the public telephone. After all, news was her business in life.

Her face was set as she put in her nickel and gave the number of her office to report to the city desk.

As she waited, she realized to the full just what this would mean, not only to her paper but—to the man she loved. To the paper it would mean money; to him it would mean further tragedy and sorry. Duty on the one side, love on the other. Her path lay clear. The voice of her city editor answered her.

"Hello!" she said. "This is Betty Potter—on the Vane case. I've been out all the morning, and... I haven't heard a thing." (To Be Continued)

CINCINNATI, O.—Miss Beatrice Weber, Dayton, O., won the national lip-reading contest of the American Federation of Organizations for the hard of hearing. Miss Weber, who retains only 45 per cent of her hearing faculties, nosed out Mrs. Adelbert Schenk of this city.

Address Feature Of Garden Club Meet

Mrs. Charles Miller of Canton addressed members of the Salem Garden club Monday afternoon at the meeting in the garden at the home of Mrs. Frank Harris on East State st.

Mrs. Miller's interesting talk on "The History of the Rose" brought out little known facts concerning the flower. Mrs. Miller told in her address of various historical events in which the rose figured prominently, as one, the War of the Roses in France, when the opposing sides of nobles fighting for the sovereignty of France wore as their badges red roses and white. She exhibited a coin made in France during the war which has the emblem of a rose on it.

Mrs. Lyle Harris announced that the Lisbon Garden club is planning a flower show for the last week in August to be held at Lisbon at which time the local club will have a display.

Mrs. James Hayden entertained with readings and Mrs. Orvil Hoover read a paper, "The Cultivation of Roses", prepared by Mrs. Burtt Leeper.

The next meeting of the club will be a picnic dinner at Mrs. Harris' garden in July.

Bathing Suits Give Sun Chance

In the good old days many a boy got "tanned" in the woods for swimming without his shirt, but he had a reason for going without his shirt, namely—the cumbersome suits of the 90's (left). More and more has been taken off for modern beach styling, until at last the irreducible minimum seems to have been reached. Most beaches now allow costume (below, left) for men, and Nancy Flake (right) sports charming form-fitting suit for women. Both can get their tanning on the beach in 1935.

HOME MAKING HELPS

CURTAINS CAN TONE UP ROOM

A CORRESPONDENT writes that she is worried about drapes for her windows. She likes drapes, but she cannot manage right now to buy the expensive damask that she craves and she doesn't seem to care for anything else.

Well, the lady shouldn't worry about her drapes for the present. As she won't be satisfied with anything but that which her heart desires, she should forget about drapes and make her windows just as beautiful as she can with the aid of glass curtains. These window coverings are coming into their own after a long emphasis on drapery.

We have just seen some lovely new weaves and we advise our correspondent and all of our readers, even if they are contemplating the purchasing of new curtains, to see what the shops are offering in that direction.

Drapes Decorative

Drapes are purely decorative, when all is said and done, but curtains must be both practical and pretty. Not only must they give tone and beauty to the room, but they must add a note of individual smartness to the exterior of the house.

When a room contains several windows of varying height, it is best to eliminate drapes entirely and use heavy glass curtains that will hang long and full. For the sturdy and heavy-sectioned bay windows frequently encountered, it is best to treat the window as a whole, with straight hanging drapes on either side and two panels of glass curtains to each division. Then the window section will look rich without seeming too heavy for the room. Nor will there be too much material which is something that has spoiled the harmony and beauty of many a window.

If the room is small, keep away from drapes unless they be simply hung, quite straight to the floor.

Sheer and Delicate

The new curtains are of lace-like mesh, many of them with a delicate allover scroll design. These are sheer enough to admit light and air, but sturdy and heavy enough to give you privacy from outside and not obstruct the view from within. Then there are interesting curtains specially designed for French doors, which, because of the wide expanse of glass, constitute a problem all their own.

When deciding on curtains, always take into consideration the type of room for which they are required the type and position of the windows, the ceiling height, the size of the room and its exposure. In most large stores you generally will find a consultant to whom you can take your problems. If you

Smith Creamery And Trades Class Tied 1-1 At Close Of Game

Darkness Halts Class A Softball Battle After Nine Innings on Monday; Washington Blues Drop Salem China Team, 5 to 0

SPORTS followers of the Class A league were witnesses to a class game at Centennial park Monday evening between the Smith Creamery aggregation and the Trades Class, which darkness ended in a 1-1 tie at the end of the ninth inning.

A two-base hit by Zelle in the second inning drove Coe in for the Trades' only run, but Moffett crossed the plate in the sixth to tie things and still the battle raged.

The Dairies got eight hits off Pitcher Herron but didn't get them at the right time. Will granted the Trades Class batters four hits.

The Washington Blues copped the other city league game from the Salem China team, 5 to 0. Hendricks' home run and the two-base hits of Dickens and E. Brudery aided the Blues greatly.

The Pottery, on the other hand, got 9 hits off E. Brudery, in the box for Washingtonville, but they were spread out too far. Regal hurried for the Pottery.

Recovering from a recent upset, the Baptists yesterday trounced the Friends church league team, 26 to 9, as the Baptists got 16 hits off Allen, on the mound for the Friends. Hartsough, Baptist hurler, allowed the Friends batters 10 hits.

The Columbians lost a five-inning game to the Christians, 11 to 6, yesterday, a game widely marked by errors. Summaries:

Pitts Improving His Batting Eye
ALBANY, N. Y., June 25—Edwin C. (Alabama) Pitts worked today to improve his batting eye in order to retain his position as lead-off man for the Albany Senators of the international baseball league.

Pitts has played three games for the Senators but has scored only two hits in 12 times at bat. Playing under the lights last night for the first time he went hitless, grounding out twice and flying out twice. Four other Albany players also went hitless. Pitts made four putouts.

There were eight nominations for the purse, but the most likely to face the starter will include Cavalcade Miss Isabel Dodge Sloan's great winner, A. G. Vanderbilt's Discovery; Mrs. Silas B. Mason's Head Play, Azucar from the stables of Fred M. Alger, Jr., and Roman Soldier, black colt with plenty of speed owned by Sachsemauer and Teute.

Five crack thoroughbreds, all money winners, will make up the select field of sprinters meeting in Detroit next Saturday in the $25,000 Detroit challenge cup race over one mile and three-sixteenths.

YANKS' TAMULIS TAMES INDIANS AGAIN, 4 TO 1

Cleveland Gets Eight Hits for Only One Run Yesterday

By ANDY CLARKE, Associated Press Sports Writer.

Vito Tamulis, unobtrusive fellow who has rocketed to the fore of the Yankees' high-powered pitching staff, has tamed the Indians again.

He has a peculiar ability to throw balls where there are no Cleveland Tomahawks, and yesterday he hung his third Cleveland scalp to his belt and ran his season record to seven wins with only one defeat.

The Indians got but one run, while the Yankees, stretching their lead in the American league to four games, got four.

In the ninth inning he found himself in difficulty after a scratch hit and a clean single. The count reached three and two on Winegarner, and then Tamulis began tossing those strikes that are so hard to reach.

Winegarner hit several fouls before he whiffed completely on the fast, dipping ball. Tamulis limited the Indians to eight hits, three of which bounced from the bat of Joe Vosmik.

Whitehill Beaten
Earl Whitehill, former Detroit pitcher now with Washington, lost 9 to 8 to his old teammates after pitching 14 innings at Detroit. With two men aboard, Anker, who had been sent in as a relief pitcher for bridges, lifted a high fly that permitted White to score from third.

A tenth inning double off the bat of Burnett enabled the St. Louis Browns to defeat Philadelphia, 2-1.

Zeke Bonura's homer with two on was instrumental in the defeat of Boston by the Chicago White Sox, 6-4, in other American league games.

In the National league, the Chicago Cubs were forced to go ten innings to subdue the league-leading New York Giants, 10-9. It was a batsman's holiday, with a total of 30 hits ringing off the bluegums.

Paul Dean did not last long enough to retire a batter in the first inning of the Cards-Brooklyn game but St. Louis came from behind to win another free-slugging contest 7-1. Jimmy Collins of the Cards continued his home run spree, collecting his sixth homer in five days and his 16th for the season.

Cincinnati defeated the Phillies 6-4, for third straight triumph, the Reds lacing four Phillies' hurlers for 17 hits and driving Curt Davis from the box in the sixth with a two-run rally that clinched the game.

Park Jrs. Spank Tiger Nine, 12-7
Punching their hits more effectively, the Centennial Park Juniors spanked the West End Tigers, 12 to 7, on Prospect grounds Monday morning. A total of 16 errors were chalked against the Tigers.

ALTOONA SPEEDWAY To Reopen In July With Title Races
ALTOONA, Pa., June 25—National championship automobile racing yesterday accepted one of the most important announcements of the year when it was formally made known here that the famous Altoona speedway, idle since 1931, would reopen next month as a dirt track.

George Long, who with the late Jack Prince was the power behind the erection of the mile and a quarter board speedway back in 1923, as manager for the new racing group announced that the inaugural drive—a 100-mile national championship—would be staged on Sunday.

The new track, known as the Altoona-Tyrone speedway, is a one and one-eighth mile dirt oval, constructed along the inside apron of the boards and presenting a new and unique idea in dirt tracks. It will be the only track of its kind in the world and will be one of the most spectacular speedways to be seen anywhere.

Amateur Golf Meet Starts

Nearly 125 Players Crowd Kenwood Links at Cincinnati

(By Associated Press)

CINCINNATI, June 25—Close to 125 golfers crowded the Kenwood Country club course today, playing the first 18 of the 36-hole qualifier for the amateur state championship.

The real crowding is scheduled for Wednesday when the final 18 are played, for all the 125 will be trying to be among the select 32 who will go into the match play fight for the title.

Several state champions of former years, including Dewitt C. Balch, of Cincinnati who won 22 years ago, and then repeated 16 years ago, were seeking to regain their laurels over the 6,570-yard par 71 layout.

Other title holders of the past included in the field were Johnny Florio of Columbus, Bob Servis and Bob Kepler of Dayton, Joe Wells of Steubenville, and Glen Bishop, Maurice J. McCarthy, Jr., of Cleveland, winner of the 1934 event, is not participating because of business pressure.

In addition, the field boasts Bill Cleary of Cincinnati, state public links champion; Allen Joslin, Jr., of Cincinnati, winner of the Ohio collegiate title for the second straight year, and Neil Ransick, amateur champion of the Queen City. Ransick teamed with Art Smith of Summit Hills, Kentucky, Monday, to take the pro-amateur event, curtain raiser to today's classic, with a 62, two under par. The same pair won the pro-amateur at Springfield two years ago, with a brilliant 68, six under even figures.

Kansas City Back In Second Division

CHICAGO, June 25—Kansas City's Blues, who appeared headed for the top of the American association less than two weeks ago, have slipped back into the second division.

After a slow start, the blues hit a winning stride and moved into the thick of the battle for the leadership. A relapse, however, has cost Dutch Zwilling's team seven defeats in its last eight starts, two of which were administered yesterday by the lowly, but extremely troublesome Toledo mud hens.

SMITH DAZZLES BRITISH OPEN
California Scot Rumps Over Gullane Course Six Under Par

MUIRFIELD, Scotland, June 25—They were still talking about MacDonald Smith's sensational opening round as the qualifying competition of the British Open golf championship went into the last half today.

The Carnoustie-born Scot, who makes his headquarters at Glendale, Calif., romped over the Gullane in Monday, to take the pro-amateur event, curtain raiser to today's classic, with a 62, two under par. The same pair won the pro-amateur at Springfield two years ago, with a brilliant 68, six under even figures.

There were no official records for the long and windy course, but the oldest golfers in the vicinity couldn't remember when anyone had played the layout within two strokes of Smith's figures. The 45-year-old Smith went out in 34 and shaved two off that total coming home.

Joe Kirkwood, Australian trick shot artist, playing the Muirfield course, turned in a 72 to tie for the Muirfield low score with Francis Francis, British amateur. Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa., and William Lawson Little, Jr., American and British amateur champion, got 77 and 78 respectively.

Frank Ball, formerly professional at the East Lake course in Atlanta, Ga., got a 72 at Gullane, and Joe Ezar of Texas chalked up a 73.

The first bout starts at 8:15 p. m.

Joe Louis Is Favored To Whip The Primo Tonight At Stadium
Little Carnera Money in Sight and Odds Are 2 to 1 in Favor of Negro Puncher; Italian May Be Still Feeling Effects of Baer Bout

By ALAN GOULD, Associated Press Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, June 25—No matter what happens tonight when Joe Louis, "Brown Bomber" from Detroit, trains his short-range punching fire on Primo Carnera at the Yankee stadium, their box office appeal assures one of the biggest financial successes since pugilism took the country from old man depression.

Favorable weather reports, coupled with extraordinary interest aroused throughout the country by the most important mixed match in more than a decade of heavyweight activity, boomed the ticket sales.

There was little chance of a sell-out for a park that can accommodate close to 80,000, but it appeared certain more than 50,000 customers would contribute nearly $400,000 to see just how long it would take the youthful Negro, Louis, to bring down the 265-pound Italian Giant.

Such a turnout would dwarf the relatively small crowd, less than 30,000 and which saw James J. Braddock take the heavyweight title from Max Baer two weeks ago. It would set a new "high" for a non-championship match since Jack Dempsey flattened Jack Sharkey in the same arena in 1927.

The odds appeared likely to be at least 2 to 1 in favor of Louis, when the clans gathered at the ringside. There was little Carnera money in sight. Broadway shared the general belief of fistic experts and followers—large that the huge Italian is made to order for the deadly-punching Negro.

Reports that Carnera would scale close to 255, considerably over his best fighting weight, did not lend any encouragement to his followers. Despite his advantages in size, reach and experience, Primo's chances of avoiding Louis' knockout punch were not considered bright.

The belief in well-informed fistic circles was that Carnera, still shell-shocked from the terrific beating he took from Max Baer last summer, would be lucky to last a half dozen rounds.

His one big chance seemed to be that he might snare the current luck of the long-shots. He did it once before when he knocked out Jack Sharkey and won the heavyweight title. He proved his courage under fire against Baer.

He lacks only two things in a physical makeup that otherwise make him the most formidable fighting specimen of his time. Those two things happen to be a punch and a durable chin.

Racial rivalry and the fact that the fight occurs at a time when the governments of Italy and Abyssinia are in a dispute has prompted promoters and police to cooperate in taking unusual precautions against the possibility of an outbreak among spectators.

Authorities minimized the prospect of any disturbance, but more than 1,000 uniformed men were due for assignment to the stadium.

Both principals were kept under continual guard as a result of unsubstantiated rumors that attempts would be made to "approach" one camp or the other. The commotion was reminiscent of the old days when no-big heavyweight fight was world activity, threatened arrests or attempts to put something in somebody's tea.

"Charlie Chan in Egypt" will be shown at the State theater tonight and tomorrow, also the round-by-round film of the Braddock-Baer fight.

Warner Oland as Charlie Chan this time solves a crime committed in the ancient tomb of the high priest Amet in Egypt. The French Historical society sends a group of excavators to the valley of the Nile. Part of the treasure that they unearth, precious jewels and gold, is stolen and several murders follow.

Chan proves these murders were committed by man and not the cat-headed Egyptian goddess Sekmet as is the suspicion of the people who believe that the goddess of vengeance destroys the persons who disturb the monarchs in their slumber.

Pat Patterson, as the daughter of the expedition's leader, gives support to Warner Oland. Stepin Fetchit, as a native of the desert sands who becomes Charlie Chan's strange and frightened aid adds comedy to the tense situations.

Rite Cansino and Thomas Beck are also in the cast.

Warner Oland has played Charlie Chan so long that to him he is a very real person. He says "Charlie Chan is virtually a living person as far as I am concerned."

"I've played him so often, thought about him so much, that I feel that I know him personally. I know how he reacts to any situation, how he sizes up people and events. I've built up in my mind a background for him, his family history, the kind of friends he has, everything about him."

"If I am able to play him realistically on the screen that is the reason, Olan adds, 'It is something like knowing a foreign language well enough to think in it.'"

This was the final club activity until fall.

A Review of the Day's News

By Arthur Brisbane

TODAY'S saddest story has nothing to do with Abyssinia, Germany, or anything human. In Hagerstown, Md., a little wren and her mate lived happily so tame they took crumbs from the hands of children. The female bird suddenly left her nest, chattering pathetically. F. G. Grove found a black snake with its head in the nest and inside the snake, found the little wren's mate, recently swallowed.

Who can prove that this grief is less important than any tragedy among human beings. A wren's heart beats far more rapidly than a human heart, and perhaps it feels more keenly.

Some young criminals, apparently can be adequately managed only by the electric chair. In their case, it seems useless to talk of reform, or "another chance." They are distinctly of the rattlesnake class.

Consider a 25-year-old machinist, captured in Peoria, who confessed to murder, when the clothing of a dead girl was tossed into his lap. "Yes, I did it," he sobbed. This young murderer kept a diary, which in one month recorded 16 attacks on young women. The electric chair should cure his sobbing.

At one time, in one city, more than 1,000 criminals, with bad records, were locked up for investigation. It was probably a mistake not to turn in lethal gas that would have settled all their troubles for always. That cannot be done legally, yet, but crime may force the adoption of some such method, a sort of legal "vigilance committee."

In the lute of Anglo-French friendship and understanding, there comes a rift, wide enough to let a coach and four drive through. England dealing directly with Germany and Herr Hitler, now rejects the French suggestion of a "consultative pact" which would compel Britain to consult France before reaching any important diplomatic conclusions.

That ought to interest this country, which agreed to consult everybody on earth before building more ships, or tilting its big guns to the most effective angle.

It is stated, bluntly, by British officials, "Britain is placing greater stress on friendly cooperation with Germany, closer consultations with the British dominions, and a steady drift toward cooperation with the United States."

News from the department of commerce would surprise the recent deceased blue eagle, and others. "Business shows sharp upturn throughout country since death of blue eagle, the commerce department reports."

This is the skeleton announcement, the details show retail sales increasing in spite of the abominable spring weather, in some of the big cities.

Sen. Huey Long "hurled a challenge" at President Roosevelt in a letter that he read to the senate. He said if the President would enact his tax program at this session, he, Huey Long, would vanish from politics and take his "share-the-wealth" campaign with him. He feels that the government's "share-the-wealth" idea is a "steal" from his own.

It is to be hoped that Huey Long will not disappear. For him to withdraw into obscurity would be like the great whale disappearing from northern waters, the two-horned rhinoceros from the zoological gardens, the ostrich from desert sands, or the ornithomachus from Australia. Picturesque things should be preserved somehow.

Rev. Edward V. Dargin, recognized as an authority on Catholic canonical law, declares in the "Ecclesiastical Review" that Rev. Fr. Coughlin of Detroit and the radio, violates the canon law, "and should be punished."

Father Dargin, pastor of St. Joseph's church at Croton Falls, N. Y., quotes a law that "expressly commands priests to abstain from public discussion of political or secular matters."

Replies that F. Coughlin has hitherto made to other church authorities indicate that he feels able to decide these matters for himself.

Serves Sentence

RALEIGH, N. C., June 25.—Without stealing anything on father time, Luther Sherlin, 47-year-old cement worker, has completed serving 13 30-day prison terms in a 12-month period.

Sherlin accomplished the feat by getting a few days off each sentence for good behavior but each time he was released he managed to get locked up again right away. Each time the charge was intoxication.

Presbyterian Head

WOOSTER, June 25.—Rev. Edwin B. Townsend, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Marietta, is the new moderator of the Presbyterian Synod of Ohio. Other officers elected yesterday: Frank M. Patterson of Plain City, permanent clerk (re-elected); L. C. Roy of Columbus, treasurer (re-elected); Rev. J. W. Dunbar of Colebrook, temporary clerk.

Editor, The News:

The following effusion has been inspired by a recent letter in The News in which a writer advocated the demolition of the City hall, and threw cold water on the attempt to have the building removed to Centennial park and converted into a historical museum for the education of our children. It has been partly inspired, as well by the general apathy of the people of Salem toward such a proposition. With its pre-Civil war history, it ought not to be permitted to sink into the oblivion that is promised for it.

Town Hall

To Liberty they built,
And the Friendship of man to man,
Friends they called themselves,
And Friends they were—
To the children of their bosoms,
To unemancipated women and the enshackled slave;
Friends to progress, to righting the wrongs of the world,
A haven they made their little town
Where the fugitive might stop to rest,
Where great souls, harried by greater towns
Could preach in freedom the freedom they sought for all mankind,
And where their children could have the freedom to learn of man.

Simply they built their shrine,
With simplicity and beauty of line,
And with eye for proper angles;
With a perfect tower they crowned it.

Of frail wood they built, however (albeit oak);
Perhaps they could not see
That battles for Freedom must be forever fought,
And shrines to Freedom must be built
To last forever.

Little men came at length to their town,

TROY, June 25.—When a band of Gypsies mulcted his wife of $18, one Troy farmer took the law in his own hands and recovered the money at the point of a shotgun. Sheriff Kenneth Miller reported. The officer escorted nine auto-loads of the Gypsies out of Miami county.
